2010
Cities of Migration
The Hague, October 3-4.
An Opportunity Agenda for Cities

Conference Programme
Cities of Migration is led by the Maytree Foundation in Canada, with partners in Germany (Bertelsmann Stiftung), the UK (Barrow Cadbury Trust), Spain (Fundación Bertelsmann) New Zealand (The Tindall Foundation), and a growing international network of contributing institutions and projects.

The 2010 Cities of Migration Conference also recognises the generous support of the Municipality of The Hague and the 15th International Metropolis.

ABOUT CITIES OF MIGRATION

When the Maytree Foundation and its partners launched the Cities of Migration initiative in December 2008, it was the first international initiative to connect global cities around shared issues of migration and immigrant integration and to focus on local practice of urban experience.

Our curated collection of “Good Ideas in Integration” tells stories about cities animated by the energy and opportunity that immigration provides. Stories about how new social, economic, cultural and political capital are creating benefits for thriving urban communities across Europe, North America, Australasia and globally.

Our international webinars bring together migration and integration experts and practitioners for city-to-city learning “with no carbon footprint.” This is a unique way to help cities learn from each other and transport successful ideas from one place to another.

Today, we are delighted to bring you together face-to-face for our first international conference. Over the next two days, dynamic speakers, a city leaders panel, a media session, an international marketplace and a town hall discussion invite you to share in conversations, ask questions, discover new colleagues, and take home some fresh ideas and new ways of thinking about living together in our urban neighbourhoods, workplaces and public spaces.

The Cities of Migration team at the Maytree Foundation, our partners and our supporters at The Municipality of The Hague and the 15th International Metropolis, wish you an exciting tour of good ideas and a ringside view of how urban leadership is taking this opportunity agenda forward.

ABOUT MAYTREE

Established in 1982, Maytree is a private foundation that promotes equity and prosperity. Its focus is on the reduction of poverty in Canada, with a particular focus on immigration, integration and diversity. The foundation is known for its commitment to developing, testing, and implementing programmes and policy solutions related to immigration, integration and diversity in the workplace, the boardroom and public office.

Maytree does this work for sound business reasons. Immigration brings economic and social benefits to Canada’s cities, and in turn, this brings prosperity to the country. The foundation therefore sees its engagement in migration and its attendant issues as a wise investment of private money for public good.
WELCOME

When speaking about our work at Cities of Migration, we often surprise people by saying that our project is not just about migration, nor just about immigrants.

Today, immigration, migration and integration are part of the language we use to describe a much larger story about the increasingly fluent movement of people, markets, culture, language and knowledge across borders, regional jurisdictions and time-zones to large urban centres.

In an era of globalization and unprecedented urban growth, that story can be about open, inclusive cities that are creating opportunities for all and include a palpable sense of excitement and opportunity. Or it can be a story of segregation, tension and alienation that can be passed along to the second and even third generations.

At Cities of Migration, we prefer to tell the stories of success for a simple and compelling reason. When integration is done well, it fuels economic growth, spurs innovation and talent renewal, creates new knowledge and promotes an open, richer and more cohesive social fabric.

When it is done poorly, the results are costly and far more complex: poverty, segregation, social tension and alienation. These deficits hurt more than individuals. They erode the health and well-being of civil society and functioning democracies.

It therefore seems to us that sharing the success of cities as far flung as New York and Berlin, Birmingham, Auckland and Montreal is a simple strategy to enable success to travel from one city to another.

Cities have a critical role to play in integrating newcomers, engaging their residents, and creating opportunities and a sustainable future for all. Regardless of national narratives or policy frameworks, the lived experience of integration is inherently local. The quality of the welcome experienced by migrants has a huge influence on their future success and ultimately on the prosperity of our cities.

Success is contagious! Good ideas move quickly. We have the stories to prove it. Over the next one and a half days we invite you to become part of a learning community that combines practical wisdom and strategic insight to building a new consensus around these important issues.

Join us as we discuss good ideas, practical strategies and innovative approaches to framing the policies, managing the messages and implementing the changes that make integration work in global cities.

Thank you for joining us for the first International Cities of Migration Conference.
